

The horrors of the abandoned planet

It was another day in the 'Skeld HQ', where astronauts took care of dangerous situations like hostile 'imposters'. A red-looking bean with his red beanie named Chilly was lying on a couch, relaxing. He's known to be a laid-back man who prefers peace.

Until he was suddenly slapped by his partner who was impatient and wearing a yellow suit known as Banana, with a banana skin on top of his head, he shouted, 'Wake up! You've been sleeping for like an hour! We have a situation to investigate, there are no signs of alive crewmates in the planet 'Polus' we have to check it out.' Chilly yawned, 'Well have I?' spoken in a calm tone, 'Well let's just get there.'

They arrived at the planet 'Polus' however instead of seeing lights and crewmates doing research work, it was dark and cold as they proceeded, they found dead bodies of poor crewmates. Banana was horrified but Chilly was brave and he looked at something suspiciously, he claimed, 'Ah, I see I see, it seems like the usual hostile imposter case.' He then points out the footprints. Banana quickly followed the footprints while Chilly was going as slow as a turtle.

However, what they found was a shock, the location was rather strange since it leads to the lava hole. The once they made it there they saw a mini-look blue crewmate crying as Chilly witnessed two burnt bodies inside the lava hole. Unluckily, the child was too young to speak. However, Banana decided to call a day, but felt disappointed. Chilly took care of the little crewmate, but still thinks a question, 'what actually happened?'