Our week in The Big Apple

It was a truly unforgettable trip, I finally get to see the place where dreams are made of. We landed in New York in the early hours of the morning. My family had barely slept the night before, we were too excited. We hopped on the famous yellow taxi and went straight to the hotel to drop off our bags.

My mom and I are huge sitcom fanatics so we dragged my dad and brother to the set of various television shows like “How I Met Your Mother” and “Friends”. It was surreal to see what I saw on TV to then be right in front of my eyes. The tour guide even gave us some behind the scenes facts about the actors. Before we left, I had to get some souvenirs from the gift shop, I bought a yellow umbrella and a golden picture frame.

We then wanted to pay a visit to Lady Liberty, The line was super long and the entrance fee was way too overpriced so we listened the advice of some locals and took a viewing boat, the boat had more locals than tourists, it was like a treasure only known to those who lived there. We got to see the statue super close up, it was a super relaxing boat ride away from all the clutters of people.

However the most interesting place we went to was the giant ‘M&Ms’ store. It had all the flavours you could imagine, salted caramel, cookies and cream, popcorn, it was magical. There was a section of the store where you could customize your own ‘M&Ms’, we made black and white ones with our dog’s picture on it!

Overall it was a very satisfying trip, we had so much fun in New York. Hopefully, we could visit again in the future!
