It was the year 2122. In a small workshop, Peter, a boy who is interested in science has received an invitation from the famous engineer and friend Kona the Klipspringer from planet Lycella to the most high-tech city, Cyber City for a project. He, Mimi the mole, and the security droid Robby are close friends with him so they took Mimi's car to Cyber City.

Once they arrived at the city, what they saw was a wonderful sight of the city. There were so many aliens travelling there. Then Robby said that Kona had given the heads-up by telling them to go to Cyber Primary School, where a robot had gotten into trouble! So, Peter ran to a hover bike rental shop, told the alien shopkeeper with a pointed nose that he urgently needed three hover bikes, and paid him thirty cyber coins and headed over to the school.

They saw a robot lying on the ground. Peter asked, "How can we help you?" The robot said, "I had a flat battery and ran out of power. Can you help me get a battery?" So, he accepted and asked where to find it. The robot told him to go to the school battery room to get one for him. So, Peter simply had Robby to do the job since he could use camouflage and Robby came flat out in no time with a battery. Once the robot had full power, he thanked them and led them to Kona's house.

Soon, they managed to arrive at their destination just as Kona was waiting for them. He led his three best friends into the lab where he was working on his project: a jetpack for everyone to use!
